School rebuilding project in Nepal

Kadambas School - 210 pupils

Let's build them
a school so they can recover
their lives

In 2015, 7.8 and 7.4 magnitude earthquakes hit Nepal near the city of Kathmandu destroying 800,000 houses and 30,000 classrooms. Today, more than a million children don't have access to schools due to the lack of infrastructure.

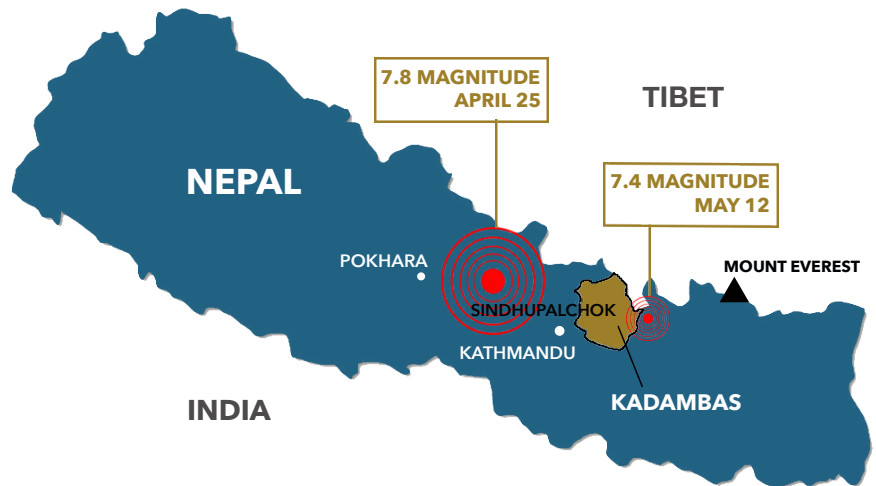

YuCha gives you the opportunity to rebuild their future by building a 7 classroom earthbag school allowing 210 children to attend school safely. The project will take place in March and April 2016. And we are actively searching for donors.

THE CONTEXT

25th of April and 12th of May earthquakes

On the morning of 25 April 2015, a huge tremor was felt across Nepal. In under a minute, an entire country was thrown into chaos.

Nepali people are known for their warm welcome and strong will for both economic development and natural and cultural heritage enhancement. The nation now faces an unprecedented challenge. Rebuild a country. Give the children, victims of the earthquake, a future.

THE DISASTER IN A FEW FIGURES

8,000 casualties/ 23,000 injured/ 450,000 displaced persons
2,8 million people affected by the consequences of the earthquake.

after the earthquakes, emergency aid saved human lives. now, we must save the future of the children who will make nepal's tomorrow.

THE SCHOOL PROJECT

An earthbag building for a long term sustainable project capable of resisting natural disasters

Earthbag school built 6 days prior to the first tremor by «first steps Himalaya» in sangachok, nepal.

This structure withstood 2 major earthquakes and 500 aftershocks thanks to the earthbag building technique, earthquake-resistant. (Photo taken 2 weeks after the last quake)

EARTHBAG CONSTRUCTION

The principle is to build walls with polypropylene bags filled with earth, set in rows, tamped and reinforced with barbed wire and steel rebars. The finishing plaster is made of cement and the roof is made of tin sheets fixed on a wooden structure. This technique is eco-friendly, affordable and earthquake-resistant.
